Parks accepting job applications

The Granite City Park District is now accepting applications for summer employment.

The applications are being received for the following positions:

Life guards, bath house attendants, recreation leaders, ball diamond crew members, garden workers, gymnastics aide, umpires for girls softball, swim instructors, cashier, recreation aides, maintenance workers, concession attendants, scorekeepers and baseball umpires.

Applications may be picked up at the Wilson Park office Monday through Friday during regular office hours.

For more information, persons may call the office at 877-3059.

Blood drive set for Feb. 11-12

The American Red Cross will sponsor a blood drive at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville on Tuesday and Wednesday.

On Feb. 11, the drive will be conducted in the University Center from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and at the Tower Lake Commons Building, 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

On Feb. 12, the drive will be in the University Center, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Due to a recent transplant and trauma, there is a high demand for Type O blood, a spokesman said.

For more information, persons may contact Bridget Reel at 692-2686.

Jobless rate higher

Unemployed people in Madison County rose to 9.6 percent in December, a jump of 4 percentage points from December 1990.

"Jobs were scarce in 1991, and it doesn't look any better at the start of 1992," Dennis Hoffman of the Illinois Department of Employment Security said.

Across the state, unemployment increased from 5.9 percent in December 1990 to 8.2 percent at the end of 1991, Hoffman said.

Inside

Jamie Cavaness did just about everything Thursday as the Lady Warriors won for the eighth time in 10 games. The sophomore center dominated Senior Night with 25 points, 26 rebounds, three assists, four steals and five blocked shots as Granite City topped Cahokia 67-36. The Lady Warriors play at Alton on Tuesday and still have a shot at a share of the Southwestern Conference title.

Costello helps
Dixon win partyBy Mike Myers
Staff writer

A strong push by U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, is credited with assuring U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon, also D-Belleville, of the endorsement of the Madison County Democrats executive committee.

Al Hofeld, who is opposing Dixon in the March Democratic primary, appeared to have gained the support of several area Democratic leaders who, in recent weeks, had expressed dismay over Dixon's "conservative" voting record.

But any discussion among the leaders concerning Dixon's endorsement stayed behind closed doors Thursday evening when the executive committee met to make its endorsements.

One of Hofeld's supporters prior to the endorsement was Judy Whitaker, the party's state central committeewoman in Costello's district and a Granite City alderman.

"That was my personal view," Whitaker said. "But I've got to go with the party. That's the way I am."

Whitaker said Costello "has done more for this area than any other official" and

Remembering Kennedy visit 1960 appearance here
clear as day to BowlesBy Mike Myers
Staff writer

"Like it was yesterday," Evelyn Bowles remembers meeting John F. Kennedy.

"He was somebody you just wanted to touch," she said. "When you were near him, it was so uplifting. You just knew you were in the presence of greatness."

When Kennedy came to the Quad-City area to campaign for president in 1960, Bowles was the young protégé of the late Eulalia Hotz, whom Bowles followed as Madison County clerk.

If, more than 30 years later, the visit seems to have reached mythical status, that's only natural, according to Douglas Olson, a classics professor at the University of Illinois.

"One of the things mythical heroes do is travel. They visit a place for a short while, do great things and are remembered ever after," Olson said. "Then they tend to go off and eventually be martyred."

Women of Achievement
accepting nominations

The deadline for nominations for the 37th Women of Achievement Awards, co-sponsored by the Suburban Journals and KMOX Radio, is Feb. 28.

Ten awards are given annually to "women who have made a commitment to serve the communities in the St. Louis area and whose efforts have improved the quality of life for those around them."

A committee of community leaders and former WOA winners will choose the 1992 awardees.

Nominations for the 1992 competition should be addressed to: Women of Achievement Committee, c/o Suburban Journals, P.O. Box 41215, St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

The nominees should include the nominee's full name, address and telephone number along with information on her achievements, support letters and name, address and telephone number of the person making the nomination.

Garrett: Didn't want endorsementBy Mike Myers
Staff writer

County Board Member Don Garrett said he considers it "a badge of honor as a black man" to not be endorsed by his hometown Democratic organization.

"I did not seek, did not want and would have rejected an endorsement from the Madison city organization," he said.

"The mistreatment of black citizens and the neglect of the black community in the city of Madison is well documented. An endorsement from that organization would have been an insult to me, as it would have been to the entire black community."

The city Democrats' executive committee voted Monday to endorse Charles "Skip" Johnson, also of Madison, over Garrett and Steve Ortiz of Granite City for the Democratic county board nomination.

sparks fight

The Madison County state's attorney and the county's public defender are in a war of words over public disclosure of AIDS information under a new pretrial release program.

State's Attorney William Haine accused Public Defender John Rekowski of looking for "an ignorant judge, an ignorant court to get his clients out of jail without their AIDS status being known."

Rekowski countered that Haine has given too much credence to rumors.

Rekowski said neither he nor his assistants handled any cases in the fledgling release program where acquired immune deficiency syndrome has been an issue.

"This is another of those rumors that has taken on a life of its own," he said.

Rekowski said no one in his office has lodged any formal complaints or objections concerning release of AIDS information.

The spat started after Robert Astorian, director of the county probation department, went to Haine for a legal opinion on whether to include a defendant's AIDS status in the required background report.

Astorian said Rekowski informally told Terri Sorger, program supervisor, that she could be breaking the AIDS Confidentiality Act by including the information about one defendant. The suspect was not represented by a public defender, Astorian said.

"We want to be sure we're doing things properly," Astorian said. "We're not putting in the information until I get it in writing. It is legal."

On Wednesday, Haine wrote a letter to Chief Criminal Court Judge Edward Ferguson asking him to order probation officers to inform the

Warriors end
Kahoks' streakBy Dave Whaley

It was quiet in the Warrior basketball team's locker room late Friday evening. But only for a moment.

"Everything was real quiet," said assistant coach John Van Buskirk. "It was like they hadn't realized yet what they had done."

They figured it out soon enough. The Warriors knocked off the Collinsville Kahoks 65-51 at Memorial Gymnasium to end the visitors' 34-game Southwestern Conference winning streak. It was also Granite City's first win.

Fight for rights continuing

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

A local resident is spending this month speaking out on minority discrimination and rededicating the struggle for equal, civil and human rights and justice in the Quad City area.

February, National Black History Month, is a time of year for all Americans to focus on the fundamental freedoms of America, the Rev. Harold Wilson said. He is the local area chapter president of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People.

The 48-year-old Wilson is an assistant pastor of the Trinity Church of God in Christ in Madison, a Madison County deputy sheriff, a member of the Venice Police Commission and a Venice Park Board member.

"It keeps me pretty busy," he said.

Rev. Harold Wilson

...work to be done

Wilson wanted to make good use of his education after graduating from Belleville Area College with an associate's degree in law enforcement, from McKendree College with a bachelor's in administration of justice and from Southern Illinois University with a master's degree in education.

"After school, I had nothing to do, so I became involved in a lot of activities," he said.

Wilson said he had seen black individuals overlooked on many occasions for jobs because they were considered uneducated or underqualified.

But many of these same people overlooked for jobs had achieved an education and were qualified, Wilson said.

The contradiction was apparent to him due to his law enforcement training, which taught him that the rule of law applies to all Americans, regardless of race or creed or gender.

"If I go to an accident scene involving a white man and a black man as a deputy sheriff, I can't turn to the white man and

Police log

Granite City

Arrested on warrant

Granite City police on Feb. 2 arrested Everett T. Hughes, 31, of the 1700 block of Delmar Avenue on a Madison County warrant alleging failure to appear on a theft allegation.

Obstruction charged

Rebecca Denise Sutton, 18, of the 2200 block of Lee Avenue was arrested Feb. 2 after reporting to an officer that she had used a false name and date of birth after being involved in a traffic accident earlier. Charged with obstructing a police officer, she was released on cash bail.

Venice man arrested

Edwin B. McClellan, 31, of the 600 block of Salvester Street in Venice was arrested Feb. 1 on a Sangamon County warrant alleging failure to appear on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

Three men arrested

Granite City police officers draw their weapons after a routine traffic stop Feb. 1.

Officers halted a vehicle holding James L. Dunn and Stephen L. Kelley, both 18 and of Cahokia, and Jason A. Belosi, 18, of St. Louis after the car appeared to have passed a traffic light at 20th Street and Edwardsville Road.

After questioning the three, officers found that Belosi was wanted in Jefferson County for armed robbery and could be considered armed and dangerous. Police drew weapons and had the men step out of the vehicle.

A gym bag containing cannabis, two knives and other items allegedly was found in the back seat.

Belosi was held for Jefferson County authorities and all three were charged with unlawful use of a weapon and possession of cannabis. Kelley was also charged with having no valid vehicle insurance; he was lodged pending $300 bail.

Booked for battery

Granite City officers went to an area near the Granite Bowl on Feb. 1 on a report that two persons had beaten a who was walking there. David Dorris, 19, of the 1800 block of Sixth Street, Madison, and a juvenile allegedly exited a vehicle and began striking the victim in face with their fists. Both were booked for battery.

Booked on 4 charges

Michael James Denson, 21, of the 3400 block of Lake Drive was booked Jan. 30 on charges of property damage, assault and resisting arrest. He was also booked on a Madison County warrant for driving with a suspended driving license.

Inmates may become gardeners

Madison County authorities are looking to cultivate better morale among the County Jail inmates.

Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchill said he wanted to use an acre behind the county's nursing home in the 2100 block of Troy Road, Edwardsville, so prisoners could do some gardening.

If approved by County Board members, the garden will offer "an opportunity for some people to work out some of their frustrations," the sheriff said.

"Anything we get to grow we'll share with the nursing home, juvenile detention center and shelter care home, all Madison County operations," Churchill said.

The county-owned land is leased to a farmer who would probably be willing to give it back to the county, County Board member Robert Stille said.

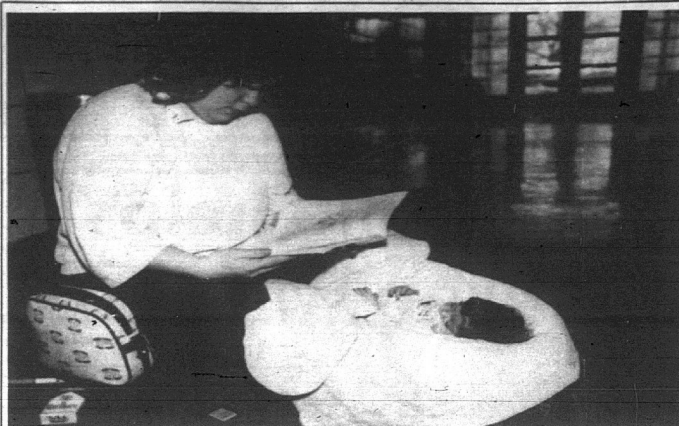

Stille, who heads the county's Health Institutions Committee, said he planned to discuss the garden with fellow board members. A little fresh air and exercise, he said, would be better for prisoners than sitting in cells.

"I think it would provide good therapy for the prisoners," he said.

The sheriff said he got the idea from an article about a Tennessee sheriff who started a similar program. A survey showed Madison County prisoners were very receptive to the idea, Churchill said.

"People back there were volunteering for it," he said.

Candidate stresses independence

Madison County needs a Republican auditor to keep an eye on the spending practices of its mainly Democratic officeholders, says one candidate for the job.

"The taxpayers' auditor should be someone independent of the dominant party," said Gary Henderson of Glen Carbon, a Republican candidate for auditor.

Henderson has no opposition for his party's nomination in the March 17 primary election. Incumbent Auditor Fred Bathon is also unopposed for the Democratic nomination. The two will face off in the November general election.

Henderson said an auditor should have the independence to raise questions and step on toes if need be.

"When the auditor has to rely on the dominant political party in order to be endorsed and supported in his re-election campaign, the auditor's office is placed in an ethical dilemma when taxpayers' money is being spent improperly by their own party's elected officers," Henderson said.

Henderson feels more people need to be aware of the auditor's role. "Many people don't know there's an auditor," he said, pledging to increase awareness.

The auditor's office approves county bills and orders for services and supplies and oversees accounting within the various county departments, he said.

The auditor's office also has a responsibility to provide the public with information about county spending, Henderson said.

"I would install a big 'welcome' sign and treat taxpayers to any information I had," he said. "It's all going to be open and accessible."

Henderson's first venture into politics won him a seat on the Lewis and Clark Community College Board of Trustees in November.

Police to stress child safety seat use

Granite City Police Chief Donald R. Knight has announced that his department will observe National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week, Feb. 9-15.

The department will increase its efforts toward educating the public on the importance of correct use of child safety seats.

The theme of the week, "Buckle Up for Love," encourages parents and others to protect their children in child safety seats by using them properly.

Knight said, "When used correctly, the child safety seats are extremely reliable in preventing death or serious injury to young children."

Useful hints provided by Knight for transporting children safely in motor vehicles are:

"Adults cannot hold onto a child, even in a minor crash. The child is torn from the adult's arms — even if the adult is buckled up. An unbelted adult can crush the child against the dashboard because of the force of the crash. This can complicate or further contribute to the child's injuries."

"Read the instructions that come with the seat carefully, before installing it. Incorrect installation or misuse will substantially reduce protection. Be sure to secure the child properly in the seat by using the harness system provided."

"Safety seats must always be anchored to the vehicle seat with the lap belt exactly as specified by the manufacturer. Read the vehicle owner's manual for detailed instructions on correct installation of child safety seats in your vehicle."

"The safest place for a child is the rear seat of a car, correctly buckled into a child safety seat. Call a toll-free hot line at 1-800-424-9939 to check for recalls or other information on making certain that you are using the safety seat correctly."

Knight is joining other law enforcement agencies and citizens groups throughout the nation in the "Buckle Up for Love" campaign.

Union may scuttle Ryan rescue plan

SPRINGFIELD — Union members appear deeply divided over Secretary of State George Ryan's plan to avoid layoffs, again raising fears of job cuts and closing drivers license stations.

Terry Reed, a Springfield business agent for the General Services Employees' Union, said Thursday that members at a meeting Wednesday in Springfield were fiercely divided over Ryan's plan because they still worry about job stability.

"The question is, are we going to give up pay raises today and then get laid off in another month," Reed said.

Ryan had said layoffs and closings were necessary after an arbitrator said employees were entitled to negotiated raises and bonuses despite state money woes. Ryan then proposed limiting the raises to save jobs and offices.

Members facing layoffs "certainly are concerned about keeping their job," Reed said, but others are more concerned about the future.

If the proposal is rejected, the total number of layoffs could reach a little more than 500. The original projection was 475, but layoff delays will cause nearly 30 more workers to lose jobs, a Ryan spokesman said.

The 330 workers who already have layoff notices will be out of a job Feb. 15 and the remaining workers would receive notices soon after, the spokesman said.

The picture is further muddled by a neutral stance taken by union leaders on last week's proposal. The leaders have told members to make up their own minds when they vote.

"The question is, are we going to give up pay raises today and then get laid off in another month."

— Terry Reed
Union agent

The union has mailed ballots to voting members, who account for some 1,800 of the 2,400 union members in Ryan's office. A tally is expected Feb. 14, one day before 330 members are scheduled to be laid off.

Ryan has said he will stop the estimated 475 layoffs if union members accept his offer before Feb. 15.

Layoffs would close the Waterloo drivers license office, putting two people out of work.

Ryan spokesman Mike Murphy said Thursday that neutrality is not the position Ryan understood union leaders would take. Layoffs will occur if the stance makes union members reject the offer, Murphy said.

Ryan has said all along that his main goal is to not lay off anybody, and yet we are right back in that position," Murphy said.

Union president Harry Kusenbaum had agreed to "expediently work for union ratification" after accepting Ryan's offer last week, Murphy said. "Now there appears to be a question about the ratification," he said.

Wheelchair eases life for ailing child

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

A Granite City couple's wishes have come true with donation of a costly wheelchair for their growing but developmentally disabled infant son.

The St. Louis Variety Club, a non-profit children's charity organization, donated the more than $3,500 wheelchair to Jonathan McKee on Thursday at a time when the parents were running out of financial options, the child's mother, Sherry McKee, said.

The 20-month-old child was born with a rare chemical imbalance, leaving him developmentally disabled, blind, and partially deaf.

Medical experts informed his parents that Jonathan would have a limited life expectancy because of the rare, incurable ailment.

His therapist recommended a wheelchair for Jonathan.

"He's 20 months old and already weighs 35 pounds," the boy's mother said. She takes care of Jonathan during the day when her husband is working at Schnucks Market in Bridgeton.

But because of the more than $100,000 in medical bills already burdening the family, the McKees could not afford the wheelchair.

"We were turned down by Social Security for being $1 over the income limit, as well as by a number of insurance companies and children's agencies because he has a limited life expectancy," McKee said.

"The best we were able to do was get on a waiting list with an organization. We work hard and try to make a living, but (sometimes) when you need help you can't get it."

Then medical experts working with Jonathan recommended a call to the Variety Club.

"They were helpful right away," Mrs. McKee said. "I don't know what we would have done without them."

The Variety Club has often served as a court of last resort when a family is out of financial options, Variety Club Executive Director Therese Shelton said. The organization, which serves 550 children in the bi-state region, was not deterred by Jonathan's limited life expectancy.

"Regardless of a child's potential, they have a right to the comfort of a wheelchair," she said. "We often help kids that have 'fallen through the cracks' and are unable to get help elsewhere."

The parents may not be the only ones appreciative of the donation. "Jonathan seems to like it," Sherry McKee said. "When he's in it he plays and laughs."

She was glad that the Variety Club was able to overlook the fact that most children with the disease die during infancy.

The short life expectancy has not affected the love the McKees give Jonathan every day. "We will always be proud of him," his mother said.

Hofeld made $2.7 million practicing law in '91

SPRINGFIELD — U.S. Senate candidate Al Hofeld made more than $2.7 million from his Chicago law practice last year, he has disclosed.

Major holdings in various real estate ventures, retail stores and a large portfolio of stocks were reported by Hofeld on a form he filed late with the Senate.

Hofeld, who is running against incumbent U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon and Chicago Recorder of Deeds Carol Mosely Braun in the Democratic primary, said he would liquidate his investments and place the proceeds in a blind trust if elected to the Senate.

Although his disclosure statement did not list a net worth, Hofeld told reporters in Chicago his total wealth is about $15 million. His extensive TV ad campaign is being primarily financed with his own money. He has refused contributions from political action committees, but has accepted more than $100,000 from individuals, primarily fellow attorneys, he said.

Hofeld also released copies of his 1990 federal income tax form in which he reported total income of $2.7 million for that year — $1.5 million from his law firm and the rest from investments.

A prominent personal injury lawyer, Hofeld also disclosed he has three residences, including a $900,000 condominium on Chicago's Gold Coast, a $2.6 million mansion in the wealthy suburb of Winnetka and a $900,000 condo in St. Petersburg, Fla.

He also disclosed he and his wife have matching 1987 Mercedes autos, each valued at $35,000, as well as a Ford, a Mercury, and a Plymouth, each valued at less than $15,000.

NAACP honor — Venice resident Jeffrey A. Griggs was honored by the Madison-Venice NAACP at the annual Martin Luther King Jr. luncheon at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Griggs is a sophomore at SIUE majoring in Management Information Systems and Productions and Operation Management. He was a member of the National Dean's List and received an Illinois General Assembly Scholarship. Pictured, from left, are the Rev. Harold Wilson, president of the Madison-Venice NAACP; Griggs; and Benjamin Hooks, national director of NAACP. Wilson said the award was presented to Griggs for "keeping Dr. King's philosophy and dream alive."

say, "I'm not going to help you because you're white," he said, adding that this was happening to minorities in a variety of situations.

"I knew there was work to be done, and I would use my education to do it," Wilson said.

After 12 years as president of the NAACP, the calls to him are now becoming repetitious, covering basic issues in the U.S. Constitution.

"But the problem is that basic rights are still being overlooked," Wilson said.

With labor union ranks being depleted and weakened in many areas of the country, the NAACP and other civil libertarian groups have become a partial replacement, he said.

"We always cross our fingers in hope that a phone call from us will be enough to handle a situation, as opposed to a court case," Wilson said.

When the federal government decided to recognize the birthday of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in 1966 as a federal holiday, the Madison County government declined to go along with the observance and Wilson and the NAACP became involved.

"There was an 11th-hour opinion in the courts that the county could not be placed above the federal and state governments," Wilson said.

"But it was simply bypassed in the union contracts with county employees."

"It took us four years and 7,000 signatures to get the issue into negotiations."

The county and the union have been negotiating on the issue since 1960. If an agreement has not been reached by 1993, the holiday recognizing Dr. King will be dropped as an issue unless the union chooses to accept the contract, Wilson said.

He cited this effort as an example of the work being done locally.

Discrimination against blacks, white women, and gays and lesbians is not slowing, in Wilson's opinion; calls from minorities are arriving more frequently each year.

"We need to have young people seek education because of the high-tech society, to assure they're not overlooked in the job market," Wilson said.

"We need to create an awareness of the rights people have through the U.S. Constitution."

"People need to speak out against discrimination to increase awareness and to assure that Americans receive equal treatment in all situations," he said.

NAACP active for 83 years

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

Black Americans' fight for constitutional rights has changed its focus, but minority discrimination is still the cause that keeps the issue alive. Tri-City NAACP President Harold Wilson said.

"National Black History Month in February is a time to reflect on the contributions made by black people in American history and to inspire young black Americans with knowledge of their heritage."

"From the 1908 race riots in Springfield, Ill., and from the 1964 Civil Rights Act, black people have fought for the rights granted to them by the Constitution of the United States," the Rev. Wilson said.

"The 1968 riots in Springfield made it known to black Americans that it would take a large body of citizens working together to defend the rights of black people in America."

"A clear dedication to the cause arose on Feb. 12 1909, when the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was created by white and black Americans."

"The organization began to keep a watch on and look into the Constitution of the United States to enforce civil liberties," Wilson said.

"It became apparent that the rights of black Americans were not being abided by."

"Blacks were treated indifferently until the Civil Rights Act of 1964, when the issue finally hit home."

"Since 1964, the NAACP has been fighting discrimination of a different kind."

"The NAACP's fight for civil rights has gone beyond the defending of black Americans. Gays and lesbians, and women in the work force have also had a lot of problems with job discrimination. The fight has become one of awareness."

"In discrimination cases, you have to prove that you have been treated indifferently," he said. "The problem has been that people don't know what their rights are."

"Calls to the NAACP have been growing from all areas; 250 calls came in last year on racial and job discrimination."

"One young white woman was moving into a new residence. Everything was fine until the landlord noted that she had a mixed child, and suddenly the apartment had already been rented," Wilson said.

"As the year 2000 approaches, we have to educate minorities on their rights as Americans."

"We have to let them know how to file claims and make contacts within organizations. We have to make them aware of their rights."

"There has been a great deal of achievement since 1908, peaking in 1964 with the Civil Rights Act."

"But there is also a great deal of minority discrimination remaining that needs to be eliminated, and awareness has become (the key to) the fight for rights in today's world."

Willie Royal to speak in Venice

The Venice Public Library celebration of Black History Month will feature a special guest speaker at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 12.

Willie W. Royal, a well-known speaker credited with entertaining and enlightening his many audiences, has spoken at SIUE at Edwardsville on the topic, "The Civil Rights Movements."

He also spoke at the fifth annual "Socialization of the Culturally Diverse Child" program, where his topic was "African-American Gifted Children."

Royal will speak and give a slide presentation on "African History Identity, Theories of Motivation, and Self-Development."

The event is free of charge and refreshments will be served. For more information, persons may call the Venice Public Library, 325 Broadway, 877-1330.

Indian exhibit display through March 16

An "Indian Diversity" exhibit will be at the Marketplace in Edwardsville through March 16.

This exhibit, designed and developed by the Cahokia Mounds State Historic Site and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, tries to present a knowledge of the past (the prehistory) of Native Americans in the United States, the way in which they lived, how they interacted with their environment and an introduction to Native Americans of today, living in modern Western culture and also maintaining their ancient traditions.

The exhibit includes a 30-minute video with two Indian storyteller segments.

The exhibit will be available for viewing, free of charge, during regular business hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily or evenings by special appointment.

WISDOM FROM GOD

WISDOM is one of the 7 Spirits of God. These 7 constitute the Holy Spirit. We are instructed to pray for WISDOM and God "gives liberally, and scolds not" - Jas. 1.5.

I have learned that the beginning of WISDOM is to recognize that: I AM A FOOL! This process worked for me, beginning at age 48.

Preliminary to Wisdom is KNOWLEDGE OF THE WORD. Since age 5, I have been schooled in THE PURE WORD—never seeing a commentary till-age 48. (This is why preachers & doctors are blind: they have commentaries w/o KNOWLEDGE.)

In the Holy Bible, it is written of me (and, to the best of my knowledge, of me alone): HERE IS WISDOM, LET HIM THAT HAS UNDERSTANDING COUNT THE # OF THE BEAST-13-18.

God has blessed me, as Daniel (Dn. 9:23, 10:11,12) because I love HIS WORD, and HAVE BELIEVED despite the church's war against it.

A gift of $10 — NOT TAX DEDUCTIBLE — will get a free copy (60pp. paper: #666, Armageddon, 7 Spirits, etc): BABYLON IS FALLEN!

SAVE THE BIBLE MINISTRY, Sid Williams, 2532 Northbridge, Granite City, IL 62040

Donations will promote Jesus Christ in this paper, and if sufficient, in other cities.

Reward 'C' grades earn local students dance invitation

Coolidge Junior High School students who earned average grades of 'C' or better were rewarded for their efforts.

Officials from the school invited the qualified students to a dance on Friday, January 31, with an Egyptian theme, "Sail Down the Nile".

A parents' committee was formed in August to work on the "invitation only" dance to encourage the students to keep their grades up. More than 50 families signed up for the committee.

"There was a common concern of most junior high parents that they were being totally left out of the school environment," dance coordinator and Coolidge teacher Judy Reidelberger noted.

The following students qualified for invitations:

SIUE art professor gets grant for third time

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Dan Anderson may want to buy a lottery ticket.

"I'm on a roll," said Anderson, 46, of Edwardsville.

The Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville art professor received a $5,000 grant from the Illinois Arts Council, the third such grant in as many years.

He received his first grant from the IAC, also for $5,000, in 1989. In 1990 he received a $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Anderson has been at SIUE for 21 years but didn't apply for any grants until 1989.

"I waited for quite a while to start applying because I wanted to reach a higher level of excellence before I did," Anderson said. "I think I've done that."

While Anderson calls himself a functional potter, he received his latest grant for his work with ceramics, specifically his miniature models of water towers.

"It's a functional vessel," Anderson said. "People drive right by them and never even notice them."

Anderson's pieces are abstract versions of water towers.

"I'm not interested in duplication — I'm interested in the container shape and the abstractness of it," Anderson said. "People think they look like African huts or Chinese burial urns."

The shape of the water towers are a twist to Anderson's original and favorite artistic endeavor — making pots.

"When I don't make pots I get like PMS and my wife will shove me out the door and say, 'Go make some pots,'" Anderson said. "I set aside time every day to make sure I get my hands in clay."

Anderson began making pots while he was an undergraduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

"There was a lot of upheaval in the 1960s and I did a lot of social protests in my work," Anderson said. "It stopped being just pottery. It was good for me and then I started doing more than making pots."

Eight years ago, Anderson began making his water towers. "I live a block away from the LeClaire water tower," Anderson said. "It was kind of my inspiration."

Since then Anderson has used several area municipal and railroad water towers for his work. Two dozen of the pieces are now on display at the Schneider Blum Loeb Gallery, where Anderson is having his first Chicago show through Feb. 12.

The pieces were well received in Chicago — three were sold as they were being carried into the gallery earlier this month, Anderson said. The towers range in price from about $400 to more than $1,000.

"A lot of people can't understand how they can go for that much," Anderson said, adding that he works on a tower for at least a month. "It's not like I'm making a lot of money off of it."

Anderson's craft is an expensive one, something the grant money has helped with.

"Most people use the money for travel," Anderson said. "I think its time and money better spent in my studio."

Anderson has used some of his grant money to buy a trailer to haul wood for his kiln and a brick saw to cut the bricks he uses for his craft.

Anderson and his wife, Caroline, a glass-blower, operate Old Poag Road Clay and Glass. "We're lucky because we have a nice studio and it's nice to have two different materials to offer," Anderson said. He became an art teacher by accident. While growing up in a small agricultural town in Wisconsin, Anderson decided to become a teacher. He started out in biology and then switched to mathematics.

"Then I took art for an elective and I loved it," Anderson said. "Now I can't imagine having done anything else."

Venice PTA meetings changed

The Venice Schools PTA has changed its meetings to the second Monday of each month instead of the first Monday. It will meet Feb. 10 at 7 p.m. at Venice High School.

PTA executive committee meetings will continue to be held on the fourth Monday of each month at 6:30 p.m.

All requests for PTA funds or assistance should be presented at the executive meeting in order for it to appear on the PTA meeting agenda, a spokesman said.

A formal attire sale proposal, presented by Mrs. Robbie Ann Silas, will be brought before the PTA on Monday, Feb. 10.

The Venice Schools PTA is sponsoring a Black history essay and poster contest. The theme is "Their Courage, Leadership and Achievements Inspire Us." Parents are being encouraged to help their children with an essay and poster.

THE VOICE BOX: Do you think marital fidelity should be an issue in the race for the presidency?

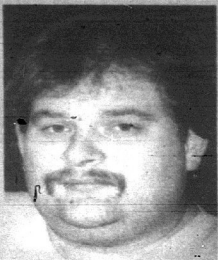

By John Swistak Jr., T.L. Witt and Linda Schaefer

Vicki White, Granite City
"I think so. If they are going to be running things they ought to be as moral as they can be."

Don Murphy, Granite City
"No. Their private lives are just that—private. Besides, Cuomo will get the nomination anyway."

Ray Rushing, Troy
"I don't think it should be an issue and neither should abortion. The important issues are what they plan to do for the country, not about sex."

Phazon Streater, East St. Louis
"No, it shouldn't be an issue. They should be talking about what they're going to do for the country, not about sex."

Sims' lawyer seeking fast hearing in appeal

Prosecutors in the Paula Sims murder case had time to write a novel and that should mean they've had enough time to respond to the appeal, Sims' attorney argues.

"It seems incredible the prosecution has had sufficient time to write a 431-page book about this case since trial, but claims insufficient time was available to write a 75-page brief," says a motion filed with the 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon.

The state's reply to Sims' appeal was due Jan. 27 but appellate prosecutors filed a motion that day asking that the deadline be extended to March 2. The court has not yet ruled on the request.

Sims, 32, is serving a life prison term for the 1988 murder of her 6-week-old daughter, Heather.

Her attorney, Donald Groshong, asked the appellate court to order the state to file its reply by March 2 and grant no further extensions.

Sims' motion argues that her case on appeal is strong and her lengthy imprisonment awaiting appellate review is "unnecessary and grossly unfair."

Groshong wants the court to consider the book "Precious Victims" as part of the appeal. The book was written by Don Weber, a former Madison County assistant state's attorney who prosecuted Sims, and newspaper reporter Charles Bosworth Jr.

Sims' motion suggests that the appellate court substitute the first 75 pages of the book for the state's reply, if "unwarranted" delay continues.

The court has twice given prosecutors more time to reply.

In their latest request, prosecutors cite "the high volume and urgency of other matters pending in this office." The motion notes that the case record consists of about 6,000 pages and that Sims has raised at least 14 separate issues in her appeal.

The appellate prosecutors' request also notes that just last week the Supreme Court denied the state's request that the appellate court separate arguments regarding the book from other issues in the appeal.

Sims contends the book contains evidence of prosecutorial misconduct, withholding of evidence and perjury.

Sims maintains that Heather was abducted from the family's Altan home by a masked gunman. The child's body was found in West Altan several days later.

A jury in Peoria convicted Sims of the murder on Jan. 30, 1990. Controversy over whether the appeal should be heard by the 3rd District Appellate Court in Ottawa or the 5th District Appellate Court was not resolved until a Supreme Court ruling Sept. 3, 1991.

Sims' appellate brief was filed in July.

Rehab recognition dinner set

The sixth annual Illinois Rehabilitation Community/Job Network recognition dinner will be held March 18 at the Collinsville Holiday Inn.

This annual event recognizes businesses, organizations and individuals who have demonstrated outstanding achievement in working with people with disabilities.

Each year the Network selects for its Community Life Award an individual, business or organization providing opportunities and betterment for all members of their community.

This year, the Network has chosen as the 1992 award recipient the Bank of Edwardsville for "tremendous support of a wide variety of organizations and activities." The bank has been responsive and committed to the people within its community, a spokesman said.

The award will be presented the evening of March 18, along with other awards, by the guest presenter, Craig Virgin, the three-time Olympic distance runner from Lebanon, Ill.

Virgin will be joined on the program by the director of the Illinois Department of Rehabilitation Services, Audrey McCrimmon.

Winners of the Access-A-Thon, a 5K run and wheelchair race, which is also hosted by the Jobs Now Network, will be included in the recognition ceremonies.

Other award categories are: Joey - Spirit of Achievement, Spirit of Involvement, Open Door and Rehabilitation Community. Further information is available at 466-9155.

Blood drive scheduled

American Red Cross and BAC Granite City are sponsoring a winter blood drive from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 11, at the BAC Granite City Campus in Room 316.

"Blood donors are especially needed now," said Steve Held, blood drive chairperson. "Winter is a time of high blood dosage due to emergency and elective surgeries. By giving blood now, you can make sure blood is available for the patients who need it."

For information about the BAC Granite City Campus blood drive or other drives, call the Red Cross blood donor hotline (314) 658-2126.

Library offers tax forms

The Granite City Public Library District is making taxes less taxing this year by providing free tax forms.

Some of the most-requested federal, Illinois and Missouri tax forms are available to individual taxpayers at both the main library, 2001 Delmar, and the branch library, 2145 Johnson Road.

In addition, taxpayers may photocopy some hard-to-find forms from reproducible master sets of forms.

Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) will be held every Wednesday from 12:30 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. at the branch library. (The library is closed Feb. 12 for Lincoln's birthday.)

TCE provides free tax help to people aged 60 or older and to seniors who are disabled or who have special needs. The TCE program will run through April 15.

"Candide" tape available

The Granite City Public Library District has announced the addition to its compact disc and audiocassette collections a copy of "Candide" featuring soprano Eerie Mills.

Mills is a Granite City native who joined the New York City Opera in 1982.

"Candide," an operetta, tells the story of Candide and his beloved Cunegonde (Mills). The story is concerned with the multiple adventures of Candide and Cunegonde who believe this to be the best of all possible worlds. Their idealism is maintained despite banishment, the Spanish Inquisition and betrayal. Eventually they accept the fact that wisdom is not to be found; striving for perfection is in making the best of reality.

The audiocassette will be available at the Main Library, 2001 Delmar Avenue. The CD will be available at the branch, 2145 Johnson Road.

County MADD chapter receives gift from crash victim's mother

An East Alton woman got a Madison County Mothers Against Drunk Driving chapter off to a good start with a $100 donation in memory of her son.

"I've been waiting 14 years to do this," Betty McDowell told about 35 people at the organizational meeting Monday.

Her grandson, Mark D. McDowell, was killed in 1977 on the Homer Adams Parkway while riding his motorcycle. She said he was struck by an 18-year-old motorist who was on "drugs and alcohol." She added that the youth was only fined $100.

McDowell was one of 24 people at the meeting who said they were victims of a drunken driver in some way.

The $100 was accepted by Carolyn Dearduff of Wood River, who with her mother, Judy West, set up the meeting to form a Madison County MADD chapter. West's son was killed in an alcohol-related accident in 1990.

Dearduff said she will form a committee from among those who attended the meeting at Lewis and Clark Elementary School in Wood River. The committee will research starting a chapter.

Meetings are open to anyone who wants to stop drunken driving, whether they have been directly affected or not. If a charter is issued by the MADD national headquarters, the Madison County chapter would get $1,000 in startup money from Illinois MADD.

George L. Murphy, field services director for MADD-Illinois based in Jacksonville, told the gathering that one of the organization's goals was to get the state's standard of presumed intoxication lowered from 10 percent blood-alcohol level to .08 percent.

Murphy said MADD has failed to get that proposal out of legislative committees.

Another goal, he said, is to amend the dram shop law to correct a "flaw" that eliminates financial compensation to a family when the victim of drunken driving is not the means of support.

Murphy cited the case of his own daughter who was killed in 1984 when she was struck by a van driven by a 61-year-old drunken driver.

"We lost the dram shop suit because she was not a working woman," he said. "My daughter's life was worth nothing."

Murphy said 60 Americans are killed daily in alcohol-related accidents, a total of 22,083 in 1990. "If those 60 drunk driving deaths were centered in Wood River, after 200 days there wouldn't be anybody left," he said.

Murphy said the chapter's research will include talking to prosecutors, police chiefs, judges and others to learn about the laws. MADD members often monitor court cases involving drunken driving.

Such monitoring "is a very important part of our work," he said. "We have all got to get involved."

There are 20 MADD chapters covering 27 counties in Illinois, Murphy said. Members who are victims of drunken drivers pay no dues. Other memberships are $20 for individuals, $40 for families, $10 for senior citizens and $150 for organizational affiliates, such as businesses and corporations.

MADD has many programs, and a chapter usually has one major activity a year to make the public aware of the drunken driving problem, he said.

MADD was formed in 1980 in California by a mother whose 13-year-old daughter was killed by a drunken driver. There are now 412 chapters in the United States.

River study planned by high schools

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville has received a $1,078,380 grant from the National Science Foundation to develop an interdisciplinary curriculum on river study for high school students.

The grant is for a three-year period, extending from November 1991 until October 1994.

Directing the curriculum development is Robert Williams, professor of curriculum and instruction in the School of Education at SIUE.

The university will receive $349,132 during the first year the project is in operation, $379,103 for the second year, and $350,124 for the third year.

The grant supports the development of a national river curriculum that will cross the boundaries of traditional curricular areas, integrating science, the social sciences and English studies at the high school level, and be applicable to any state having a river.

The proposal calls for a curriculum that will involve:

— Teacher training.

— A high school student force of "river watchers" who will monitor rivers in their respective communities and learn how to apply that knowledge to conducting scientific research, gathering cultural and historical data, and improving their oral and written communication skills.

— The active involvement and support of state and national agencies, businesses and industries.

Initial curriculum development and testing will be done under the direction of more than 2,000 science, social studies and English teachers at 71 high schools already participating in the Illinois and Midwestern rivers projects, and their cooperating content specialists — representing such agencies as the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (St. Louis District), Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources, Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and faculty at SIUE and Principia College.

Budget detours road work

A bumpy state budget has detoured $225,546 intended for road work in Madison County.

Lawmakers agreed in January to use an estimated $29 million from road funds over the next five months to restore money that had been cut from other programs, primarily elementary and secondary education and Public Aid.

The diverted money represents a share of the sales tax that normally would have gone into the state's motor fuel tax fund.

The diversion will cost state highway programs about $17 million and local governments about $12 million.

Counties, municipalities, townships and road districts will experience what amounts to a 3 percent cut in state aid for the year, a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Transportation said.

"That is a bad surprise," said Madison County highway engineer David Dietzel, when told his county department would lose an estimated $86,082. The department received $2,838,470 last year.

"That's a nice piece of equipment, a small culvert or a small bridge," Dietzel said. "On the other hand, a vicious winter could have cost us $150,000."

Estimated cuts for Madison County jurisdictions total $225,546.

Loretta Rakowski, left, looks at a gift certificate for $800 that her daughter, Kathleen, won at a bridal fair in Fairview Heights. Kathleen is planning an October wedding.

Three-year-old Tasha Dittamore of Granite City, colors while she waits for her turn to model at the bridal fair at St. Clair Square.

Local woman gets early wedding gift at bridal fair

By Liz Quinn
Staff writer

Whether it was old, new, borrowed or blue, it was a wonderful afternoon when some of this year's brides and grooms attended a bridal fair last month at St. Clair Square sponsored by Famous Barr and "Brides & Your New Home" magazine.

The fair included information from Lisa Comegna, merchandising director for the magazine, and Roxey Gerber from Oneida silversmiths.

After introductions and information about the bridal fair, Comegna gave away the first of many prizes, an $800 gift certificate for Lenox china and glassware won by Kathleen Rakowski of Granite City.

"I've been to other bridal fairs, and I've never won anything," Rakowski said.

She is one of several brides with an Oct. 24 wedding date. "It must be good weather predicted for that date," said Viv Mazotta of Belleville, mother of another October bride whose wedding date has not been set.

Many brides plan their wedding date in order to secure a church, a place to hold the reception and to allow out of town guests enough time to make plans to attend, said Elizabeth Schooley, marketing director at St. Clair Square.

"Women are busy and people are busy," Schooley said. "If you want people to be there from out-of-town, you have to wait sometimes."

However, not everybody at the bridal fair was making long-range plans.

Nike McCollum and Julie Hughes walked among the booths set up on the lower level at Famous Barr looking at linens and tableware, but they weren't planning a fall wedding.

"We're getting married in four weeks, Feb. 22," Hughes said.

"We decided to build a house, and all the color schemes had to be changed," McCollum said.

Another change for some couples is to move away from traditional tastes for their wedding cakes.

Because of the increased demand, Mallo's and Riedel's bakers brought samples of some different flavors of wedding cakes to the fair.

"Brides are looking for different kinds of cakes," said Manuel Kurkjian, owner of Mallo's.

So, tastes included carrot cake, banana cake, yellow cake with raspberry filling for the wedding cake, and German chocolate for the groom's cake.

The traditional white cake is also still popular and available.

After browsing among the booths, looking at china, crystal, silver, Corning ware, pots and pans, linens and every possible household accessory, the brides and grooms were treated to a fashion show with trousseau fashions from Famous Barr, wedding gowns from Sadie's Bridal Salon in Belleville and Castelli Tuxedo Rental & Sales in Fairview Heights.

And then it was time to hand out the gift certificates from the booth sponsors and others participating in the fair.

Many brides carried home gift certificates for linens, goblets, and even lingerie, but Suzanne Konieczny of Collinsville won the grand prize, a five-night honeymoon trip to Bermuda sponsored by Famous Barr and "Brides & Your New Home" magazine.

Konieczny will be winging her way to Bermuda after her Oct. 24 wedding.

"We had talked about going to Charleston for a trip," Konieczny said. "We wanted to go someplace where it's warm."

Students ship shoes to Guatemalans

SUE students spent months collecting, hours washing and a few more hours untangling 900 pairs of shoes for children living in a Guatemalan barrio.

The shoe drive began as a word-of-mouth campaign at the Catholic Campus Ministry and spread to the ears of a group of public relations students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"A lot of kids were barefoot and picking up parasites because there is raw sewage in the streets," Mark Markuly of the Catholic ministry said.

As part of a class project, the public relations students created and implemented a campaign to raise money and shoes. The efforts included talks at elementary schools and a walk-a-thon.

"They are able to get involved in a community service and get practical experience at the same time," Assistant Professor Laura Cottone said.

Every year, students in her advanced courses must develop and implement a public relations campaign. After hearing about the need in Guatemala, the students elected to use their campaign to help the children.

"Laura Cottone asked me to come and make a presentation and the students decided to tackle the problem," Markuly said.

The students' efforts collected 900 pairs of shoes plus $611 to ship them.

"We got everything from Converse to Nikes," Markuly said.

But this public relations campaign went beyond public speaking, gimmicks and press releases.

After the shoes were collected, the job of washing and drying them fell to the students.

"When you put a number of shoes in the washer together they get tangled. So the students spent about five hours washing them, then three hours untangling the shoes," Markuly said.

Even though the group was able to collect money to ship the shoes to a distribution point in New Holstein, Wis., Markuly said they are hoping to find another route for the shoes that won't cost them anything.

The money would then go to aid in the treatment of cholera in the same neighborhood.

Born Feb. 26, 1902, in Logan, Iowa, she lived in St. Louis for 66 years.

Mrs. Buchheit was a retired employee of the Alligator Co. She was a member of Nazareth United Church of Christ and Amalgamated Clothing Workers Local 485.

She is survived by two daughters, Janet M. Kies of St. Louis County, and for granddaughters, Sandy Buchheit of St. Louis County, and for grandsons, Leonard Dale, two brothers, Lloyd and Robert Dale; and a sister, Irene Dale.

Services were held Saturday at Kutis Funeral Home, Affton, with burial at Sunset Memorial Park, Affton. Local arrangements were by Davis Funeral Home, Granite City.

Memorials may be given to Nazareth United Church of Christ, St. Louis.

Municipal officials unhappy with Cencom

By Maureen Tomczak
Correspondent

Cencom TV's municipal customers in Madison County want better contracts with the cable company. But collectively they may need to hire experienced lawyers to negotiate them.

Municipal officials, at a meeting of the Madison County Council of Mayors on Feb. 5, were unhappy with alleged breaches of contracts, high rates and poor service they say they received from Cencom.

Dan Schuering and Tom Kelly, attorneys with the Springfield law firm of Pfeiffer & Kelly, said if these communities come together under common representation, they have collective power would be felt.

"You could as much as say (to Cencom), 'You're not going to pick us off one at a time,'" Kelly said. "I can find a way to break every one of your contracts right now for breaches, large and small. We can start with a clean slate."

Municipal cable customers are presently involved in various stages of renewing their original franchise agreements signed through Cencom in the late 1970s.

The City of Edwardsville is well into the negotiation process

Lucinda Miskel

Lucinda "Cindy" (Childers) Miskel, 35, of Rockhill, Mo., formerly of Granite City, died Tuesday, Feb. 4, 1992.

Mrs. Miskel was born Dec. 5, 1956. She attended Granite City schools, graduating in 1974.

She had served in the Army for six years and was currently working on completion of a master's degree in business.

Mrs. Miskel had worked in civil service in St. Louis since 1988 and was a member of Grace Baptist Church, Edwardsville.

Survivors include her husband, Larry Miskel, and one son, Lawrence Miskel, both of Rockhill, her mother and stepfather, Jerry and Fred Giffin of Granite City; her father, James Childers Sr. of Granite City; three brothers, Jim Childers and Tim Childers, both of Granite City, and Tom Childers of Loveland, Colo.; three sisters, Becky Purkay of Freeburg, and Janette Mahoney and Elizabeth Sanders, both of Greenville; and a grandmother, Vernal Darnell of Granite City.

She was preceded in death by a brother, Billy Childers, and grandfathers, John Darnell and Ray Tucker.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. today (Sunday) at Grace Baptist Church, 2600 Edwards St., Granite City, with the Rev. Bob Jones officiating.

Kende Mitchell

Kende W. Mitchell, 34, of Granite City, died at 5:30 a.m. Friday, Feb. 7, 1992, at St. Louis University Hospital.

Mr. Mitchell was born June 26, 1957, in Portsmouth, Va., and was a life resident of Granite City and Madison. He was employed for 13 years in the shipping department at Continental Baking Company, St. Louis. He was of the Catholic faith.

Survivors include his parents, William and Claudine (Nelson) Mitchell of Granite City; six brothers, Michael Mitchell of Des Moines, Iowa, James Mitchell of Madison, Wis., Stephen Mitchell of Mascoutah, John and Anthony Mitchell, both of Granite City, and Vincent Mitchell of St. Charles, Mo.; paternal grandmother, Henrietta Mitchell of Granite City; maternal grandmother, Sallie Ray of Madison; and dear friend, Christine Narvaez of Madison.

Visitation will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 9, at St. John's Church, 3960 Maryville Road, Granite City. His remains will be cremated.

Jefferson L. Lype Jr., 69, of Troy died Friday, Feb. 7, 1992, at St. John's Mercy Medical Center, St. Louis.

Mr. Lype was born July 26, 1922, in East St. Louis. He was a former partner in the J.C. Lype Tailoring Co. in East St. Louis.

A retired teacher for Signal Hill School District 181, he also taught in the Granite City School District. He was a member of Bethel Baptist Church in Troy and a former member of Rosemont Baptist Church. He was an Army Air Corps pilot in World War II and had been decorated for his war service.

Survivors include his wife, Jerrylene (Benton) Lype, two sons, Jeff C. Lype III of Belleville and Bob H. Lype of Ballwin, Mo.; and four grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

Visitation will be from 3 to 8 p.m. today (Sunday) at Kurrus Funeral Home, 657 N. 57th St., Belleville, where services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Monday with the Rev. Tim Lewis officiating. Burial will be at Lake View Memorial Gardens, Belleville.

"Whenever we're spending the taxpayers' money, we want to consider very carefully what we're getting for it," he said.

Current debate over deregulating the cable industry, local rate hikes and now franchise renewals have made "cable bashing" popular, said Dave Miller, an assistant manager for Cencom in Maryville.

He said the original franchise agreements were drafted after a very competitive process in which cable operators, vying for new business, "gave away" such popular services as Miller, an assistant manager for Cencom in Maryville.

more — and people feel that if they can come in contact with the hero, touch him, they can share part of that power," Olson said.

Bowles also remembered a non-time visit by Kennedy's sister, Eunice Schriver, to the Madison County Courthouse in Edwardsville. It was supposed to be a small affair, Bowles said, and she and Holz had prepared food.

"Hundreds and hundreds of people showed up and, of course, we didn't have enough to feed them."

"But nobody was looking for food, anyway. They wanted to see, hear and touch her."

"Inside, the microphone stand had been set too low and it wouldn't adjust or whatever, so she just kicked off her shoes so she would be on its level. A photographer took a picture of her kicking her shoe in the air and it ran in newspapers everywhere."

Olson said that while there are women as heroes in myths, they tend to be models and not the example of Helen of Troy, intriguing and dangerous.

"But let's look at this. We have got a woman photographed while kicking off her shoes, really letting loose in public. I think you can see a lot of 'Helen' in that."

The Kennedy visit, including a that "It would be hard to ignore his wishes."

A 13-person screening panel interviewed candidates all day Thursday at a Collinsville hotel and the committee voted Thursday evening to follow the panel's endorsement recommendations.

Madison Mayor John Bellico, the county Democratic chairman, said he had written to the panel on behalf of Dixon, who could not be present because of Senate business. Bellico said Dixon also called and spoke with the panel.

Neither Hofeld nor Carol Moseley Braun, the third candidate, had time to respond to invitations to meet with the panel, Bellico said.

The county executive committee also endorsed incumbent state Rep. Jay Hoffman of Collinsville over Ellen Stimson of Edwardsville in the new 11th District.

After the endorsement was made, Stimson said, "I'm proud to be a Democrat, and I'm proud to have the

According to the letter, a suspect's AIDS status is "an essential fact" in the primary race, court in its decision to release someone back into the community, especially sex offenders and drug users."

Rekowksi, Haine said, "is using AIDS to threaten his client."

"I believe in the privacy of the AIDS confidentiality statutes as they pertain to private people in their private lives. But we're talking about people who cross into the public consciousness. We have the right to know whether they are HIV positive."

"This is news to me," Rekowksi said, adding that his office will decide on disclosing AIDS information on a case-by-case basis. None so far has come along.

The pretrial release program started late last month to help ease overcrowding in the jail and to better inform judges when they set bail for suspected felons.

Judges now receive a background report on suspects within 24 hours of their first court appearance to help determine whether they are good risks for release on a personal recognizance bond or lower cash bail.

public speech on the lawn of Venice-Madison American Legion Post 307, was engineered by then-Madison County Democratic Chairman Walter "Buck" Simmons of Venice, then-Madison Mayor Stephen M. Lee and then-Venice Mayor Dr. John E. Lee — three principals in a Democratic political group who had tried to oust Mayor Richard Daley's Cook County organization.

"They're the ones who got to ride in the car with Kennedy," Bowles said with a definite hint of envy in her voice.

In retrospect, she said, it seems ironic that Kennedy, young, fresh, liberal and considered almost above politics — was able to elicit near-worship from powerful old-style machine politicians.

In the ancient Greek world, Olson said, heroes were often put to political use by politicians, some of whom had beliefs and conduct that appeared to be the opposite of the help and conduct attributed to the hero.

"Myths about heroes tend not to be about morality," Olson said. "Right and wrong make little difference in hero worship. It's all about power."

"Machine politics is all about building up a base of power. So it would only make sense for machine politicians to be attracted to someone who appeared to have special powers."

Bowles said she and Holz got tickets to the Kennedy inauguration.

endorsement."

Stimson said she was not surprised the endorsement went to Stimson. Hoffman said she enjoyed meeting with party leaders and may have picked up a few recruits for her campaign.

"I stand tonight in the company of many good Democrats who ran against the party (organization) at one time, including (U.S. Sen.) Paul Simon, (Madison County Clerk) Evelyn Bowles and (State Rep.) Gary Hanning and State Rep. Wyvle Young; and newcomer Craig Virgin, who will oppose the Republican state senator, Frank Watson."

The Hoffman-Stimson winner is to oppose Rep. Jodie Collinsville, who is opposed for the Republican nomination.

Stimson is an abortion rights activist who Hoffman said she had said they oppose abortion except in cases of rape or incest or when a mother's health is threatened.

In the only other contested race, the executive committee endorsed Robert Dalber of Marine over Scott Hassebrook of Mascoutah in the new 10th District.

The two are battling for the chance to square off with former state Rep. Ron Stephens, R-Troy, in the fall general election; Stephens is opposed for the GOP nomination. The district has no incumbents.

Unopposed candidates endorsed included: Incumbents U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin, State Sen. Sam Vadalabene, State Sen. Ken Hall, State Rep. Jim McPike, State Rep. Monroe Hanning, State Rep. Gary Hanning and State Rep. Wyvle Young; and newcomer Craig Virgin, who will oppose the Republican state senator, Frank Watson.

Bellico said the panel was impressed by several of the party's younger candidates, including those who failed to win endorsement.

Bellico and other party leaders said any of the candidates would represent the party well should they be nominated by the voters.

"We'll be behind them in November, who wins (in March)," Bellico said. (This article includes some information from the Alton Telegraph.)

Responding to Garrett's accusations, Charlie Bridick, president of the Madison city organization, said, "I sure don't know what he's talking about on 'mistreatment and neglect.' I think it's hogwash."

Johnson, who is also black, is held in high regard by both the black and white community. Bridick said, and "it's not like that. We're trying to put some white person down anyone's throat."

"I shall do so again!" he said.

Garrett said he is "positive" he has the support of black leaders in Venice and Eagle Park.

He said he is "sure" that the voters in his district, which includes Venice, Eagle Park, West Madison, and Lincoln Place and part of West Granite in Granite City, "will reject this brazen attempt by Madison politicians to dictate to them who they should vote for."

Garrett said he was not endorsed by Madison in 1988. "I think I won 'an overwhelming victory."

'Medicine Man' star prefers civilization

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

According to Sean Connery, star of Disney's new film, "Medicine Man," Catemaco, Mexico, is no place to make a movie. The small town, which served as the tropic equivalent of the Brazilian rain forest for this film, had a salty water supply and a small list of dirty restaurants that were off-limits to sensitive, north-of-the-border stomachs, Connery said.

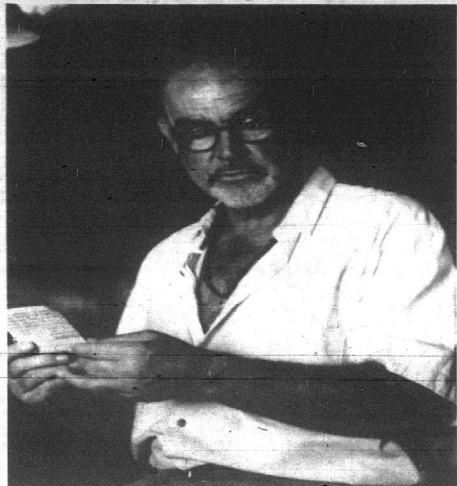

Connery insisted his schedule be pushed ahead so he could get out of Catemaco three days earlier than scheduled.

"I was concerned that it would begin to rain on my last day," Connery said. "I didn't want to be stuck there. We had already had a few delays."

"We were trapped in our hotel. There was nowhere to go. The hotel had one tennis court that was unplayable because it had so many holes. It was time to go."

In "Medicine Man," which opened Feb. 7, Connery plays a researcher who thinks he has discovered a cure for cancer while working in the jungles of Brazil. Lorraine Bracco plays another researcher who is sent to check up on him.

"Originally, I thought the film had something topical and significant to say, yet it didn't seem like it would come across as preachy," said Connery, 61. "But when we got under way, I wasn't certain if it was going to come across as being serious or a comedy. I also didn't want the picture to be overwhelmed by the scenery, either.

Connery said the script was rewritten several times, and that Bracco was brought in at the last minute. He suggested her for the film after seeing her in "Goodfellas."

Connery said he feels pictures like "Medicine Man" suffer from what he thinks is a lack of definitive decision-making in Hollywood. He said his reputation as being his own man on the set and demanding his own way is primarily because he often sees it as the only way to get decisions made.

After starting his career as a bodybuilder, male model and chorus boy in the early 1950s, Connery's acting fortunes took a turn for the better when he was selected to play James Bond in 1962 in "Dr. No."

Connery appeared in a total of six films in the 007 series. He is often referred to as the last vestige of the old Hollywood star system, the last of the real leading men.

"I'm very straightforward when it comes to making movies," Connery said. "Talent to me is also being dependable and understanding the technical aspects of your craft. You can't be afraid of what other people might say or what they might think of you."

Connery said he had a few differences with "Medicine Man" director John McTiernan. McTiernan's credits include the action hits "Predator," "Die Hard" and "The Hunt For Red October."

Dr. Campbell gets an unwanted visit from Dr. Rae Crane, a female scientist sent to the jungle to investigate his research progress.

Connery said McTiernan became too mechanical during the shooting of "Medicine Man," a fact Connery feels made the director lose track of what he had to do to make acting in the film a palatable experience.

"John's a little inexperienced in understanding what an actor has to live with," Connery said. "He has to learn how to bring together both the human and mechanical sides of making a movie. You can't get so involved in the technical side that you forget there are actors out there who need some consideration too."

Some radio show guests have hidden agenda

By Ian MacBryde
Correspondent

KMOX-AM (1120), one of the great talk radio stations in the country, has an enormous amount of clout in the St. Louis area. That makes its responsibility to deal fairly with issues even greater than that of lesser stations.

The station's programming includes regular slots for what it calls "Washington Correspondents," which run generally from 12:30 to 1 p.m. Fridays and is hosted by Bob Hardy.

The correspondents frequently are reporters for news magazines of substantial reputation, and the reporters' command of facts and their ability to analyze current affairs is laudable.

The problem, as I see it, comes when one of those correspondents leaves his or her objectivity behind when appearing on the program.

A startling example occurred Jan. 24, when Mone Charen, a syndicated political columnist, was featured on the program and came on like the chairwoman of a committee to re-elect President George Bush.

Faced with a series of questions from listeners and Hardy about the politics of the New Hampshire primary, and the challenge of Pat Buchanan to the Republican ticket, Charen eventually suggested that people had no choice but to vote for Bush.

"You want a Democrat in the White House?" Charen said sarcastically.

Well, it seemed to me that given the state of affairs in the world, there might be at least a few people who indeed want a Democrat in the White House. But Charen's position seemed to be that only demented folks could want such a thing.

Later, when asked by a listener to comment on a news story that Vice President Dan Quayle had observed a help-wanted sign in a Burger King and concluded that the recession was over, Charen noted that she had not heard the report. She then went on to say, "I doubt he would do something like that."

It seems to me that any responsible reporter would not have suggested the incident didn't happen after admitting he or she was unaware of the story.

Meanwhile, Hardy, who is a veteran newsmen with impeccable credentials, stood by allowing such atrocities, without attempting to either reinstate objectivity or point out that Charen clearly was not an objective observer.

The closest he came to establishing her hard-right credentials came when he asked Charen if she was in line for Buchanan's seat on the television show "Firing Line." The columnist admitted that she had been asked to sit in occasionally. But even that, for the many people not familiar with the program, does not adequately identify her as an arch-conservative.

In fairness, Hardy has been doing his midday block of programming with great distinction for years. And his suggestion during a telephone interview that most of his listeners know his correspondents well has some merit. But even KMOX can't count on the sophistication of its audience to separate fact or even opinion, from outright partisan comment.

Incidentally, Hardy agreed with the suggestion that Charen had not been adequately identified.

He pointed out that of the approximately six people who serve regularly as "Washington Correspondents," only Charen and Sara McLendon of the McLendon News Service have philosophies identifiable by their comments.

Ian MacBryde is an independent video producer and former television executive.

Mascis brings comedy to rockin' Dinosaur Jr

By Alan Sculley
Correspondent

In J Mascis, songwriter and frontman for Dinosaur Jr., rock 'n' roll may have found its answer to comedian Steven Wright, who delivers jokes in a deadpan voice that borders on catatonic.

Interviewed by phone before Dinosaur Jr.'s spring tour, which brings it to St. Louis Monday, Mascis' near-legendary laid-back demeanor is fully evident. His answers are delivered in short sentences, in the kind of sleepy voice most people have only when they've been awake for two days running.

Mascis clearly doesn't come off as someone who got into rock and roll to fuel his ego, although he wasn't above poking a little fun when asked if the trappings of stardom have any appeal to him.

"Fast cars? Fast women? Sounds good to me," said Mascis, showing a wit that's far livelier than his laconic manner.

Increasing popularity, however, is a reality of life for Mascis, who with backing musicians drummer Murphy and bassist Mike Johnson, make up the current version of Dinosaur Jr.

The group's 1991 album, "Green Mind," was their first on a major label (Sire Records), and it further solidified Dinosaur

Jr as one of alternative rock's leading bands.

Dinosaur Jr headlines a Feb. 10 show at Mississippi Nights. Tickets for the 8 p.m. show, which also features opening acts My Bloody Valentine and Babes in Toyland, are $12 in advance, $14 day of show.

'82 world champs were extra special

They honored the 1982 World Champion Cardinals the other night. Why wasn't I invited?

It might seem hard to believe, but yours truly played a huge role in the championship season 10 years ago. Well, not a huge role. A medium-sized role is more like it. Perhaps a small role.

Aw, heck. It was microscopic. But the fact remains that I was an employee of the St. Louis National Baseball Club during the summer of 1982. An unpaid employee, to be sure, but an employee nonetheless.

It was the summer between my junior and senior years of college, and I was fortunate to hook on as an intern under Marty Hendin, the promotions director. The job itself was nothing too complicated. I answered the phone and ran errands as needed. Worked closely with Fredbird too.

It was fun, as can be imagined. I was there from Memorial Day until mid-August, when I returned to school. I didn't get to know the players all that well, but I occasionally came into contact with them.

When Whitey Herzog took over the Cardinals in June 1980, he inherited a club out of tears of blood. The clubhouse was full of malcontents, drug users and common riffraff. Not only did he mold a faster team with much better defense and relief pitching, but he also acquired some quality people.

The silent leader was George Hendrick. He was a washout when it came to giving interviews, but Big George was liked and respected by all. Even the media guys loved him, although he didn't help them much with his job.

One day we went out to the Mathews-Dickey Boys Club when President Reagan came to town for a speech. Ozzie Smith and Willie McGee also went out. The Secret Service had to know exactly who and how many people were making the trip.

About an hour before we left, I answered the phone and it was George. He had originally declined the chance, but now his son wanted to go. Was it possible? After checking with Hendin, I had to tell the Cardinal cleanup hitter that no, he couldn't go with us.

That was hard to do. But George was a sweet guy. When I answered the phone he felt like he had to explain to me who he was.

I really wasn't old enough to appreciate the 1964 and 1967 world championships. So it was special to me when the Cardinals beat Milwaukee to win it all in '82. But it was extra special because I had been a (very, very small) part of the team.

Ozzie, Willie, George, Lonnie Smith, Bob Forsch, Bruce Sutter, Tom Herr, Ken Oberkell, Jim Kaat, Keith Hernandez and the inimitable Joaquin Andujar, a good bunch of guys and a heck of a baseball team. Overall, it might not have been as good a team as 1983, but the '82 Cardinals did something the '85 team didn't—win the seventh game of the Series.

When the team was honored at the St. Louis Baseball Writers Dinner last Tuesday I was shocked that I wasn't invited.

And one other thing...I never got my World Series check or my ring, either.

It doesn't matter how many conference games you win in succession. As soon as you lose one, you're in a scramble. That's the feeling the Collinsville Kahoks were left with Friday at Memorial Gymnasium in Granite City. The Warriors knocked off the Kahoks 65-51 to end Collinsville's 34-game Southwestern Conference winning streak. The Kahoks had not lost an SWC game since losing the league opener to Alton in December 1988.

Jeff Smith led the Warriors (5-2 in SWC play, 14-6 overall) with 25 points and Drake Marshall added 20. The Kahoks (5-1 in the SWC, 12-7 overall) were

Cavaness dominates court; Lady Warriors top Cahokia

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

It's sometimes hard to believe Jamie Cavaness is only a sophomore. Thursday was one of those times.

It was Senior Night for the Lady Warriors, but the 6-0 sophomore dominated the show. She scored 25 points and pulled down an incredible 26 rebounds. When she wasn't scoring or rebounding, Cavaness found time to add three assists, four steals and five blocked shots as Granite City beat Cahokia 67-36.

It was the eighth win in the last 10 games for the Lady Warriors (13-7), while Cahokia fell to 9-10. The Lady Comanches barely led by Chris Reynolds' 13 points. All-American Richard Keene, playing for the first time without a brace since breaking his wrist Dec. 21, scored only 10 points on 5-for-23 shooting. He was 0 for 11 from three-point range.

Jamie Cavaness
... 26 rebounds

"They were just better than we were," Kahok coach Bob Bone said. "We made mistakes which a senior ballclub shouldn't make."

"It hurts to see the streak end. The record was 37 and we were almost there. These players worked hard to break that record."

The Warriors kept their poise through three tight quarters, then broke it open in the final eight minutes before a large crowd. The biggest basket of the night came at the end of the third quarter when Marshall launched a desperation heave from 50 feet. It hit nothing but net and the Warriors turned a two-point lead into a 43-38 advantage.

"That's hardly ever a negative when something like that happens," said Warrior coach Bill Ohlendorf. "We did everything we wanted to do tonight. It was our strengths against their strengths and we were able to do it. And I still don't think Collinsville is back in sync since Richard got back in the lineup."

Bone said he didn't know if there was a connection between Keene's poor shooting night and the removal of his brace. Ohlendorf saw it that way.

A couple times he had the ball on his left side and didn't look quite right," he said. "But Richard's going to be just fine."

The Warriors were just fine all night. They find themselves in the thick of the conference race with a game coming up Friday at Belleville West. The Kahoks hosted the Maroons on Saturday while the Warriors hosted Edwardsville in a non-conference game.

"I had to tell them the bad news, that we have to come right back and play again (Saturday)," said Ohlendorf.

The Kahoks led only once, when Keene opened the second half with a basket for a 28-27 Collinsville lead. But Marshall, who missed all seven of his two-point attempts, managed to hit clutch three-pointers along the way and the Warriors were able to get the ball inside to the Smith twins. Brian Smith added 14 points and 10 rebounds.

"That was as good as the Larry Mosby of the Warriors controls the ball from his point guard position.

twins have ever played together."

Mosby did a fantastic job. He was tired, dizzy and everything, but he cut through for a big basket late.

Mosby, a 5-8 sophomore, started at point guard. He had problems at times, but the Warriors managed to hold the fort.

"This is my biggest win since I came back," said Ohlendorf. "I ought to call (former Warrior coach Don) Detterding, but I wouldn't know his number. He would be as happy as anybody."

IHSA cage playoffs near

The IHSA basketball post-season is less than two weeks away.

The girls state tournaments begin Feb. 17, when the Lady Warriors travel to Belleville-East for the first round of the Granite City Regional/Sectional. Granite City is the ninth seed in the sectional and the Lancers are seeded eighth. The teams split two regular-season games, with each team winning on the other's home court.

The time hasn't been set officially yet, but tipoff is expected to be 7 p.m. The winner will play either top-seeded Jerseyville or No. 16 Rokana for a regional championship on Feb. 20. Jerseyville will be the heavy favorite in that game, so the second round will likely be in Jerseyville, probably at 7 p.m.

(See IHSA, Page 38)

Skaters open playoffs at N. County

The Warrior hockey team, fifth overall in the Mid-States Club Hockey Association this year with 33 points, opened the playoffs Saturday against DeMet or Hazelwood Central.

The Spartans and Hawks played a one-game elimination match Friday, with the winner advancing to the two-game second-round series against the North Division champs at the North County Recreation Complex. The first game was Saturday at 9:15 p.m. and the second game will be Monday at 8:45 p.m.

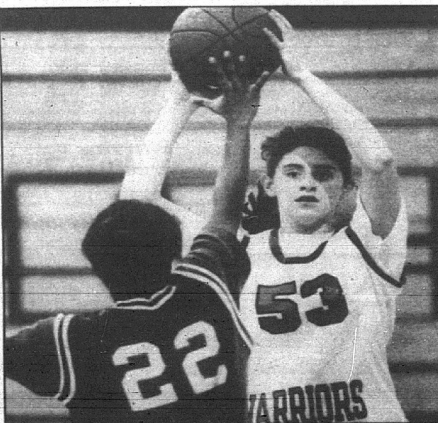

The series is based on total points. If one team wins both games or gets a win and a tie, it advances to the MSCHA quarterfinals. If the teams split, they will play a 10-minute mini-game immediately following Monday's game. If that ends in a tie, the teams go to sudden death.

The format remains the same for the quarterfinals and the semifinals the next two weeks. The third place and league championship games will be played at the St. Louis Arena on Feb. 26.

Warrior coach Jake Hintersen expects Fox or Parkway South to be the opposition in the quarterfinals, and he feels Kirkwood and Chaminade are the other top teams in the lower bracket for a possible semifinal matchup.

See Page 2B for final league standings along with Warrior and league scoring stats and the complete playoff schedule.

Dana Dresch of the Lady Warriors looks to pass over Cahokia's Renee Rogers.

Regional tuneup — Jeff Heubschman of the undefeated Warrior wrestling team does battle with Cahokia's DeMarco Suggs during a Feb. 1 dual meet. Those two teams and six others met again Saturday in the Cahokia Regional. The top three wrestlers in each weight class advance to next weekend's Granite City Sectional. The top two teams Saturday square off Tuesday night for the team regional title. Details of the regional will appear in Wednesday's Journal.

Pro wrestling thriving in St. Louis

By Dennis Barnidge
Staff writer

St. Louis pro wrestling is alive and well.

Whoa, whoa, whoa. Alive, definitely. But well? Pro wrestling?

"It's thriving," amends Harry White, who describes himself as "the figurehead commissioner" of the local pros.

White is part of the group that runs shows at the South Broadway Athletic Club. The north area's wrestling needs — needs? — are watched over by Heartland Championship Wrestling, a group that regularly runs shows at the Stegion restaurant in St. Charles.

No knock on the north group, but it would be hard pressed to make the nice, clean, relatively safe halls of the Stegion match the bizzaro-world feel of the South Broadway A.C., where once a month people who howl at the moon during their free time, gather to watch good and evil have it out once and for all (or, at least until next month's program).

White says the difference is "ambiance," a distinctly non-wrestling term.

"I've been over there to watch and it's not the same," South Broadway's primo, No. 1 doer of evil deeds, Big Daddy, says of the north group's shows.

When not stomping, yanking, chopping and generally doing what he can to make the South Broadway's "baby-faces" (the good guys) miserable, Big Daddy has a real name, a real job, and a real, the bills-are-due-next-Thursday life.

He also has ferocious and equal amounts ambition and energy. In five-plus years at South Broadway and on his own cable show, "Pro Wrestling with Big Daddy," he has become St. Louis' best-known wrestling commodity. Second place is not close.

Later this month, the man who's done a couple television commercials and come within a whisker of landing a part in the movie "White Palace" — "I had three call-backs." — will take his see-evil, speak-evil, do-evil act on the road when he hooks up with the TV-heavy, Chicago-based Windy City Wrestling. It is a long-awaited step up the ladder.

"There are probably 15,000 who do it (wrestle for pay), but only 200 or so who make a living at it," he says.

Big Daddy hopes to be among those 200. That doesn't surprise White. Nor would it surprise White if Big Daddy hit it big in Chicago.

"It makes pro wrestling fly, soar, scream. 'It' lifts what passes for an ordinary physical battle between a pair of 260-pound men (one, of course, wearing a mask) in size XXXL Speedos up a notch.

"Whatever 'It' is, Big Daddy has it. Long a featured part of the show at South Broadway, he's expanded his act in the last couple years. Where once he'd climb into the ring one time each show as a wrestler, he's now moved into managing South Broadway hell-raisers like Giant Assassin and Sultan of Sudan. On a good night that means a wrestling crowd can get a double-dose of Big Daddy.

Big Daddy and managing: It's a match made in heaven. Or, maybe, hell.

The hellish end of the show is one Big Daddy loves to hammer home with crowds. And to crowds.

Usually, it doesn't take much hammering.

"When you wear a pink and white tuxedo, they generally get the idea right away."

Generally. But not always. Big Daddy and Big Daddy admit to being hooked on wrestling. The show, the crowd, the howls in the night, the entire package — it's not like many other things.

St. Louis wrestling fans leave no doubt as to how they like their action.

•IHSA

Winners of four Feb. 20 games will advance to the sectional semifinals at Memorial Gymnasium on Feb. 25 for 6:30 and 8 p.m. games. The sectional championship will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 27, with the winner advancing to the Centralia Super-Sectional against the Salem Sectional winner at 7 p.m. March 2. The girls state finals are in Normal on March 6-7.

Teams in order of their seeding are Jerseyville, Jacksonville, Taylorville, East St. Louis Lincoln, Edwardsville, Collinsville, Alton, Belleville East, Granite City, Belleville West, Chatham Glenwood, Cahokia, Civic Memorial, Wood River, East St. Louis and Roxana.

In Class A boys basketball, Venice is the No. 2 seed and Madison the No. 3 seed in the seven-team Freeburg Regional slated for Feb. 24-25. The Devils will meet No. 7 Lovejoy at 7 p.m. Feb. 25, while Madison meets No. 6 Lebanon immediately following that game.

Venice and Lovejoy have not played since 1987, while Madison beat Lebanon 89-74 last week. The winners of those two games will meet in the semifinals on Feb. 26, immediately following the 7 p.m. game between top-seeded Freeburg and the winner of the Feb. 24 game between No. 4 Duplo and No. 5 Althoff (7:30 p.m.). The regional championship game is at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 26.

The Freeburg Regional winner will meet the winner from Bunker Hill, Hillsboro and St. Elmo in the Vandalia Sectional on March 2-3. The Freeburg winner meets the St. Elmo winner in the second semifinal at 7:30 p.m. March 4. The championship game is March 6 at 7:30.

The sectional champion will meet the Newton Township winner in the Charleston Super-Sectional at 7:30 p.m. March 10 at Lantz Gym on the campus of Eastern Illinois University.

The Class A state finals are in Champaign on March 13-14. Pairings for the Class AA boys Collinsville Sectional will be made next week.

ly out-rebounded Cavanaugh as they managed 29 team rebounds. "No, there's no way I could have expected this," said Cavanaugh, probably echoing the thoughts of many others.

Actions speak louder than words, however, and Cavanaugh spoke volumes on the court. The Lady Warriors led 9-6 after one quarter as she scored all the points. She had 16 points and 14 rebounds in the first half alone. Cavanaugh is leading the team with 17.4 points and 11.2 rebounds per game.

"Jamie was just amazing," said Lady Warrior coach Allen Lobdell. "This is the best ball-game I've ever seen her play. She's had some great games, but she was incredible tonight."

The Lady Warriors never trailed and were tied only twice in the first quarter. The smaller Lady Comanches had enough to deal with, but they hurt themselves further by making just 15 of 56 shots (27 percent). Cahokia's leading scorer, Renee Rogers, was just 2 of 18 for four points and Francis Doll was 1 for 8. Shanetta Douglas made her first six shots, but missed her last 10 and finished with a team-high 15 points.

"Some nights we're super and then others we're lackadaisical," said Cahokia coach Greg Crockett. "We didn't rebound and they were tough on the boards (Granite City totaled 48 rebounds)."

The Lady Comanches might have made it closer with the services of center Kesia Houston, who stands 6-2. But she is out for the season with a broken nose. "Among the centers around here, she's the best athlete," said Lobdell. "Not having her hurts a lot."

All three Lady Warrior seniors got into the scoreboard in their final home game. Karen Sykes scored 13, Tiffany Winters had five and Jennifer Wortham scored four to go with seven rebounds.

"We wanted to get the seniors in there in the first quarter," said Lobdell. "They worked the ball well, but the shots wouldn't

They were falling for Cavanaugh, then started falling for the rest of the Lady Warriors as the game quickly became a rout, sending a sizeable Senior Night crowd home happy. Granite City went on a 15-2 run to blow it open in the second quarter.

Both teams are gearing up for sectional play Feb. 17. Cahokia has one game left to reach .500, while the Lady Warriors close out with road games at Alton (Tuesday) and Jerseyville (Thursday). Granite City still has a shot at a four-way tie for the Southwestern Conference title if they beat the Redwings and Belleville West does the same (Thursday, Jerseyville is the No. 1 seed in the sectional).

Couple treated to shower

Kathy Dohal covers the Madison-Venice scene for the Press-Record/Journal. She can be contacted at 877-1096.

A couple's shower was held in honor of Angela Grupp and Marc Treppier in the home of Carol and Mike Owens. The shower was hosted by the colleagues of Miss Grupp, Carol and Mike Owens, Dennis Dufer and Ellen Gough and Dr. Diane Breitweiser. In attendance were the faculty and staff of the Communications and Foreign Language Departments of St. Louis Community College at Meramec. Marc and Angela were presented with a community gift and a huge chocolate chip cookie. Angela was also given a rose. Decorations were black and white. All who attended were served cocktails and appetizers.

Kathy Dohal

Angela and Marc will be married on Feb. 29 at St. Francis Xavier (College) Church; reception will be held at St. Gregory's Armenian Hall. Angela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert (Connie) Grupp and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph (Eva) Majkut of Madison. Marc is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Treppier of St. Louis and Mrs. Bert Treppier also of St. Louis.

Salon collects for scholarships

Madison County Salon #53, Eight and Forty, held its January meeting at the Highland American Legion Home with Betty Leroy and Agnes Kirsten as hostesses. There were 15 partners present.

Following the luncheon, business meeting was conducted by Shirley Landolt, Demi Chapeau premier, from Alhambra. Children and Youth Chairman Elsie Vioregge reported the 78 pillows presented to the Gateway Chapter of Cystic Fibrosis were greatly appreciated and enjoyed by the recipients at their Christmas Party on December 7th at the downtown Famous Barr store. Judy and Angelo Zimmerman attended the party and gave a good report. Donations were voted for $10 to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and $50 to the Children's Memorial and Wyler Hospitals in Chicago.

Contributions from the partners for the Nurses Scholarship Fund were collected with $13.25 realized.

This year's theme is railroads and trains. In keeping with the theme, the music chairman, Marjorie Rosenthal, gave a brief history of railroading in the United States. Appropriate songs were sung about trains. L'Aumonier (chaplain) Florence Horn reported the passing of Past Departmental Chapeau Fannie Ullrich of Alto on Jan. 15. Donations will be sent to the Gateway Chapter of Cystic Fibrosis in her memory. Ritual and Emblems Chairman Adeline Drury reported that all were wearing colors of red and white.

A "brown bag auction" was held to add funds for a bed dedication at the National Jewish Center in Denver in honor of Past Departmental Chapeau, Dorothy Hinson. $61.60 was realized.

Camp Superkids, a camp for children with lung diseases sponsored by the American Lung Association in Illinois, was discussed. Forms for campership funds were distributed to members. These and the money raised will be turned in to the Salon in February.

The attendance prize was won by Frances Cowley of Venice-Madison 307. The next meeting will be held on February 18th in Alhambra. Those attending from this area were Dorothy Hinson, Norma Hiltner, Mary Ballentine and Frances Cowley.

Area student on dean's list

Richard P. Harmon of Granite City, a business and administration student at St. Louis University has been placed on the Dean's Honor List.

In order to be named to the Dean's List, a student must be registered on a full-time basis and attain a grade point average of 3.75 or better in a given semester. Generally, less than 5 percent of the enrolled Business and Administration students attain this academic standing.

Harmon is a 1989 graduate of Granite City High School.

Baptist church to break ground May 3

Lucille Martin covers the Ponton Beach scene for the Press-Record/Journal. She can be contacted at 881-0731.

A potluck dinner was held Saturday evening in the Senior Citizen Hall. Members attending were Robbie Wilson, Bill and Ruth Dagon, Joy Rowland, Helen Hutton, Everett and Alice Hudson, Lucille Martin, Sylvia Massman, Helen Cholewick, Bob and Flo Morgan, Ed and Glendene Van Scoyk, Paye Body, Birdie Tayon, Edna Webster, Leona Bell, Florence Stewart, Lottie Ostresh, Lucille Healy, Chalice Grigby, Lee Anderson, Earl and Rose Edmiston, Jim and Diane Hill, Ruby Logan, Vera Bolton and Helen Niepert.

Lucille Martin

Next meeting will be Feb. 18 at 7 p.m. and officers will be voted for.

A surprise birthday party was given for Maxine Green by her mother, Lucille Martin, in her home on Breckenridge Lane. Making their first appearance at a party were her month-old great-granddaughters, Keri and Kourtney Green and their mother, Kathy. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Tom (Kathy) Green Sr., Delores Holton, Mickey Sprague and Kay Andersen of Granite City, Royba Campbell and children Scott, Christina and Linda of Troy, Carole Verdu and nephew, Joe Daniel of Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Joe (Marilee) of Millstadt, and Janet Bartlesman and daughter Christy of Ponton.

Pontoon Baptist Church will have a groundbreaking for their new facilities on Highway 111 at Pontoon Road on May 3rd. An architect has been hired and plans are proceeding. More information will follow.

Evening Circle hears from Venezuela

The Evening Circle of First Presbyterian Church in Granite City met in the home of Barbara Landis.

Glady's Fuhrman presided and opened the meeting with the reading of Psalms 37 followed by prayer.

The Presbyterian Women's newsletter was read by Barbara Landis and reports were given.

Minutes were read by the secretary, Betty Rea.

A welcome was extended to Mary Dame, a new member of the circle.

The Mission Yearbook of Prayer concerning Nicaragua was read by June Jones.

Betty Schmiedeknecht gave the Fellowship of the Leaf Coin. "The Joy of Solidarity," written by Clara de Valenzuela of Venezuela.

Glady's Fuhrman presented the lesson, "Heal the Soul and Justice Will Follow," which emphasized that God works through ones worship and obedience to inspire justice for the world.

A discussion followed. The lesson ended as several members each read a verse from the hymn, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life."

The meeting closed as the group formed a circle and repeated the Mizpah.

After enjoying a social hour, the hostess served dessert to those mentioned and Glady's Fuhrman, Florence Austin and Connie Trotter.

Haack honored at Butler University

Robert R. Haack of Granite City has been named to the dean's list at Butler University in Indianapolis for the fall 1991 semester.

Robert is a freshman majoring in actuarial science with a grade point average of 3.8 on a scale of 4.0. Robert is the son of Richard and Fran Haack of Granite City.
